FINAL ORDER

¶1 The appellant has filed a petition for review² of the initial decision, which sustained his removal. On petition for review, the appellant asserts that the

¹ A nonprecedential order is one that the Board has determined does not add significantly to the body of MSPB case law. Parties may cite nonprecedential orders, but such orders have no precedential value; the Board and administrative judges are not required to follow or distinguish them in any future decisions. In contrast, a precedential decision issued as an Opinion and Order has been identified by the Board as significantly contributing to the Board's case law. See 5 C.F.R. § 1201.117\(c\).

² The appellant requests that the Board consider this petition along with an earlier petition for review he filed, which resulted in his case being remanded. Petition for Review (PFR) File, Tab 3 at 3. However, the previous petition was based on an earlier administrative judge erred in sustaining the charges, finding the penalty of removal reasonable, and denying his whistleblower retaliation defense.³ Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge's rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material initial decision, which the Board vacated, not the one now at issue. Accordingly, we deny the appellant's request.

³ In his petition, the appellant alleges that the administrative judge abused his discretion by denying a number of the appellant's requested witnesses and exhibited bias toward him through his rulings. PFR File, Tab 3 at 3-4, 6. An administrative judge has wide discretion to control the proceedings, including the authority to rule on witnesses. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.41\(b\)\(8\). Specifically, an administrative judge may exclude witnesses when it has not been shown that their testimony would be relevant, material, and nonrepetitious. Vaughn v. Department of the Treasury, 119 M.S.P.R. 605, ¶ 12 (2013). To obtain reversal of an initial decision on the ground that the administrative judge abused his discretion in excluding evidence, the petitioning party must show on review that relevant evidence, which could have affected the outcome, was disallowed. Jezouit v. Office of Personnel Management, 97 M.S.P.R. 48, ¶ 12 (2004), aff'd, 121 F. App'x 865 (Fed. Cir. 2005). The appellant's vague assertion on review that the administrative judge erred in not allowing "any" of his witnesses without providing justification is not supported by the record, nor has the appellant shown that the testimony of the excluded witnesses was relevant and could have affected the outcome of the case.

As to the appellant's claim that the administrative judge was biased against him, the appellant must overcome the presumption of honesty and integrity that accompanies administrative adjudicators. Oliver v. Department of Transportation, 1 M.S.P.R. 382, 386 (1980). An administrative judge's conduct during the course of a Board proceeding warrants a new adjudication only if the administrative judge's comments or actions evidence "a deep-seated favoritism or antagonism that would make fair judgment impossible." Bieber v. Department of the Army, 287 F.3d 1358, 1362-63 (Fed. Cir. 2002). The appellant's claims, none of which involves extrajudicial conduct, do not overcome the presumption of honesty and integrity that accompanies administrative adjudicators. Simpkins v. Office of Personnel Management, 113 M.S.P.R. 411, ¶ 5 (2010).

evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner's due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review. Therefore, we DENY the petition for review and AFFIRM the initial decision, which is now the Board's final decision. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.113(b).

NOTICE OF APPEAL RIGHTS⁴

You may obtain review of this final decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(a)(1). By statute, the nature of your claims determines the time limit for seeking such review and the appropriate forum with which to file. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b). Although we offer the following summary of available appeal rights, the Merit Systems Protection Board does not provide legal advice on which option is most appropriate for your situation and the rights described below do not represent a statement of how courts will rule regarding which cases fall within their jurisdiction. If you wish to seek review of this final decision, you should immediately review the law applicable to your claims and carefully follow all filing time limits and requirements. Failure to file within the applicable time limit may result in the dismissal of your case by your chosen forum.

Please read carefully each of the three main possible choices of review below to decide which one applies to your particular case. If you have questions about whether a particular forum is the appropriate one to review your case, you should contact that forum for more information.

If so, and your judicial petition for review “raises no challenge to the Board’s disposition of allegations of a prohibited personnel practice described in section 2302(b) other than practices described in section 2302(b)(8), or 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D),” then you may file a petition for judicial review either with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or any court of appeals of competent jurisdiction.⁵ The court of appeals must receive your petition for review within 60 days of the date of issuance of this decision.
